SCALE
FACILITATORS OF THE YEAR
2020 Cohort
The SCALE (Strengthening Capacity in Agriculture, Livelihoods, and Environment) Award’s Facilitators of the Year (FOTY) Initiative recognizes and celebrates program staff who are facilitating agriculture, natural resource management (NRM), or alternative livelihoods-related activities around the world.

Program staff and community workers are on the frontlines of facilitating change in the communities where they work. Having the technical knowledge related to agriculture, NRM or alternative livelihoods is essential, but not enough on its own to lead to lasting change. Equally important are trust and open communication between program staff and community members, using adult education teaching methods, sustained knowledge exchanges between farmers and agents and using participatory approaches such as demonstrations.

We asked our community to nominate individuals working on USAID/Bureau for Humanitarian Assistance (BHA)-funded emergency or development activities who use engaging and participatory facilitation techniques, respectfully and actively listen to workshop participants and effectively draw on participants’ experiences. These exceptional facilitators comprise the SCALE Facilitators of the Year 2020 Cohort, and their top facilitation tips can be found in the following pages.

Join us in celebrating their excellence and dedication to effectively facilitating change for good!

MEET THE FACILITATORS

ARINDA JOHN BOSCO
Graduating to Resilience | AVSI | Uganda

Arinda works in the agriculture and livelihoods sectors and his facilitation style is passionate, dependable, and proficient.

“Interactive demonstration helps to promote learning of a new skill, with active participation by the participants. With this technique, first I explain and perform a step, and then all the participants perform the same step under my guidance.”

AJNABI SULTANA
Nobo Jatra | World Vision International | Bangladesh

Ajnabi works in the livelihoods sector and her facilitation style is participatory and beneficiary-focused.

“Knowing participants’ backgrounds is very important to build the first rapport with the target audience. I always try to study the geographical, cultural and economic background of the audience as much as possible before facilitation. The more I know about the group, their individual personalities and the dynamics, the better I am able to plan for a successful session and a positive experience.”

AUGUSTIN MOONDE
Tuendele Pamoja II | Food for the Hungry | DRC

Moonde works in the agriculture, NRM, and livelihoods sectors and his facilitation style is effective and communicative.

“Learn how to listen to participants and give your full attention to their concerns. This makes them much more motivated to participate.”
B. Chasinga works in the agriculture, NRM and livelihoods sectors and his facilitation style is competent, optimistic and ambitious.

“Always adapt to the local language, correctly using terms taken from the daily experiences of the participants (farmers) and from testimonials illustrating their farming and production realities. Regularly use icebreaker activities in local languages, referring to livelihoods, NRM, etc. This creates a connection between facilitators and participants (smallholder farmers) because the latter feel valued and are more receptive when they come together.”

BEKALU GESESSE WASIE

TRAIN | Food for the Hungry | Ethiopia

Bek works in the agriculture and livelihoods sectors and his facilitation style is committed, persistent and empowering.

“Make sure the objectives and expected outcomes are clear to participants, use a participatory approach, and occasionally use energizers like jokes or rewards to keep participants engaged.”

---

BISIMWACHASINGA CHAS

FSP-Enyanya | Mercy Corps | DRC

B. Chasinga works in the agriculture, NRM and livelihoods sectors and his facilitation style is competent, optimistic and ambitious.

FIRE KETEMA

SPIR | CARE | Ethiopia

Fire works in the agriculture, NRM and livelihoods sectors and her facilitation style is effective, partnership-focused and innovative.

“Good communication and negotiation can help change participant attitudes and encourage action.”
Kibret works in the agriculture and NRM sectors and his facilitation style is participatory, curious, and values the views of others.

“I use exercises such as folding arms to inspire participants to think and do things differently. I encourage trainees to try folding their arms naturally. I then ask them to fold their arms the opposite way. It is simple but not comfortable, and demonstrates that changing the habitual way of doing things is not easy.”

Jean Claude Mutombo works in the agriculture and livelihoods sectors and his facilitation style is effective, innovative and persuasive.

“I would advise the use of active listening in the facilitation of lessons, as it allows participants to understand that I am very attentive to their concerns and reflections and creates trust and rapid adoption of behaviors.”

Hermès works in the agriculture sector and his facilitation style is dynamic, innovative, and high quality.

“Make sure the engagement with the community and each group within it (i.e., elders, youth, men, women) is at the center of information gathering so you can better lead discussions on shared resources like water, which can be a source of conflict.”

Jean works in the agriculture and NRM sectors and his facilitation style is participatory, curious, and values the views of others.

SCALE Facilitators of the Year 2020 Cohort
SCALE Facilitators of the Year 2020 Cohort

MERAZ RAHMAN
SAPLING | Helen Keller International | Bangladesh

Meraz works in the agriculture sector and his facilitation style is encouraging, accepting, and probing.

“During facilitation always draw on participants’ personal experience and knowledge to promote a circulation of knowledges rather than top-down process of knowledge transfer.”

PAULIN NJINGULULA
Tuendelee Pamoja II | Food for the Hungry | DRC

Paulin works in the agriculture sector and his facilitation style is effective and communicative.

“I like to have discussion sessions around the experiences that participants have had in their fieldwork. This sharing of experiences allows everyone to learn what others have done to improve their own work.”

RUTH NINSIIMA
Graduating to Resilience | AVSI | Uganda

Ruth works in the agriculture and livelihoods sectors and her facilitation style is resourceful, collaborative, and effective.

“Be your true self to create powerful connections with participants.”
SUSAN CAROLINE SITHOLE
Go FAR II | ADRA | Zimbabwe

Susan works in the agriculture, NRM and livelihoods sectors and her facilitation style is motivational, inclusive and probing.

“Empower your participants in an inclusive and participatory manner to build the ‘I can’ attitude and motivate them.”

SULTANI BURABA MUAMMAR
FSP-Enyanya | Mercy Corps | DRC

Sultani works in the agriculture and NRM sectors and his facilitation style is effective and communicative. “Always use the languages commonly used in the community. Also, know the name of the participants. This creates dynamism and interest in the facilitation activities.”
Resources

While facilitation abilities may come more naturally to some people, anyone can master the skills and techniques needed to become an excellent facilitator. Time, effort, mentorship and practice are essential, as are quality resources. Please find below a list of useful tools and guidance to help you hone your facilitation skills.

Make Me a Change Agent: An SBC Resource for WASH, Agriculture, and Livelihoods Activities
Lesson 4 of the Make Me a Change Agent (MMCA) guide is focused on Behavior Change through Effective Facilitation. With handouts on building blocks for effective facilitation, adult learning principles, and participatory activities, this resource is a great starting point for facilitators to learn more about effective facilitation skills. Accessible at: https://www.fsnnetwork.org/resource/MMCA

Global Learning Partners: Shareable Resource Library
Global Learning Partners has an extensive resource library for individuals and organizations related to learning assessment, design, facilitation and evaluation. Their section on Facilitation has practical tip sheets for effective facilitation, co-facilitation, work with interpreters, time management, and more. Accessible at: https://www.globallearningpartners.com/resources/shareable-resources/

Permagarden Toolkit: Adult Education Training Resources
This document accompanies the Permagarden Technical Manual, and serves as a resource for trainers on adult learning and participatory training. It provides methods and tools to adjust Permagarden training plans for adult audiences. It covers topics such as learning styles, adult learning principles, energizers and constructive feedback. Accessible at: https://www.fsnnetwork.org/resource/tops-permagarden-toolkit

REALIZE: Social and Behavioral Change for Gender Equity and Diversity
This document contains a set of participatory and experiential activities that are designed to “encourage new thought and communication patterns that motivate people to change gender norms (and other types of societal norms) that impede the success of development programming – in health, agriculture, and other sectors.” Accessible at: https://www.fsnnetwork.org/sites/default/files/REALIZE.pdf
About SCALE
SCALE (Strengthening Capacity in Agriculture, Livelihoods, and Environment) is an initiative funded by USAID’s Bureau for Humanitarian Assistance (BHA) and implemented by Mercy Corps in collaboration with Save the Children. SCALE aims to enhance the impact, sustainability and scalability of BHA-funded agriculture, natural resource management, and off-farm livelihood activities in emergency and development contexts.
